Introduction

The National Library, in its systematic upgrade, introduced online resources for its users in April 2010. Online journals of reputable publishers such as Oxford University Press, Cambridge University Press, Taylor & Francis Group, Sage Publication, American Chemical Society, and aggregators' products such as Project Muse and Hein Online were acquired first. These were followed by journals of Emerald Group, Springer, Indian Journals.com. E-reference of Cambridge University Press and later reference materials of Oxford University Press and ProQuest were added to the collection. Currently, the library possesses more than 6800 online journal titles and about 3 million full-text dissertations and theses, archives of 125,000 e-books namely, Early English Books Online and more than 80,000 e-books namely, Eighteenth Century Collection Online (two modules) and along with other online references such as Scopus of Elsevier and Access Science of McGraw Hill. E-books entered the library in March 2012. The National Library of India is the first public library in the country to introduce e-books. E-books of OUP, CUP, Taylor & Francis, Springer, Wiley, Elsevier and Sage have been purchased so far and at present the library has about 12500 titles in its possession.

The Advisory Committee for Book Selection and Ordering in its meeting of January 2012 recommended bringing out a directory of online resources in order to provide easy access to readers. Following the recommendation, the job was undertaken on a priority basis. After careful thought a scheme was worked out. The main section of the directory contains the list of titles in alphabetical order with URLs, subjects and providers. However, the prefixed articles of the titles have been ignored in alphabetical order. Other section includes subject index to make the main section accessible through linking the respective serial numbers of titles.

It is the constant endeavour of the library to increase its readership by providing simple and smooth access to its resources. In this direction, the first initiative was taken with a massive online campaign to popularize the resources of the library among the faculties of different academic institutions. The directory has already been made available in soft form to the users in the library website. The hard copy is now published for the benefit of users and institutions. It is hoped that the print version of the directory will be helpful to users and save their precious time.
